Dr. Paquin Has Discovered an Anti-Consumption Serum.

Results of Experiments to Be Presented to the Society.

IT IS SAID THEY WILL BE A REVELA-TION TO THE MEDICAL WORLD.

Horses Being Least Subject to Tubercu-losis, He Used Them to Obtain a Serum Which Has Had Wonderful Effects—Not Yet Ready.

At the meeting of the St. Louis Medical Society next Saturday evening Dr. Paul Paquin, for many years a member of the State Board of Health, will present a report which will attract the attention of the medical world. But few intimate professional friends have been advised of the experiments which have been in progress for years and which have resulted in the discovery of an anti-consumption serum. For more than four years Dr. Paquin has worked secretely on the great problem.

It is reported that his recent success has decided him to make it public at as early a date as he can possibly formulate results for a report. The doctor is a strict adherent of the code, and when the medical man of the Post-Dispatch staff waited en him to obtain a statement it was with evident annoyance. He policiely but firmly declined, and subsequently denied himself to newspaper visitors.

Scientists in Switzerland and France for some time have been engaged in experiments to produce curative blood serum from the ass. The credit of the discovery of the value of immunised blood serum of the horse belongs to Dr. Paul Paquin, He has been investigating tuberculosis in man and in various kinds of animals for several years, having begun his researches at the State University, when he had a chair in that institution. The results he has achieved are said by physicians to anticipate the medical recearches the world over, in what physicians term prophylactic medicine.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 22—A gentleman whose business has brought him into contact with the custom officials has just returned from Victoria, and he tells a rather startling story regarding the shipment of forty cases of arms on the notorious smuggling schooner South Bend to the Hawaiian Islands. He says: "During my residence in Victoria and the surrounding towns last October I saw a great deal of the band of smugglers who here their headquarters along the sound. It was there I met Billy Stewart, who is known in Honoiulu as 'Opium Brown,' and Jack Forbes, alias Jack Regan. These men are well-known opium and Chinese smugglers.

"About the 22d of October I was walking under the Esquimault bridge, near the terminus of the Esquimault and Nanimo Railroad. In the recesses of an arch I noticed a pile of cases carefully covered with canvass. Each case was about four feet in length and a foot square, and I have since learned, contained rifles and carbines. I made the find about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At that time the South Bend was at anchor in a small inlet just outside the main harbor. Late in the afternoon about 500 pounds of opium packed in clothes, baskets were all placed under the bridge riest in opium in the Northwest.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 22.-This afternoon the Illinois Legislature went through the formality of ratifying the decision of noon the Illinois Legislature went through the formality of ratifying the decision of the Senatorial caucus and to-morrow the last formal ceremonies attending Cullom's re-election to the Senate will be observed. At 1 o'clock both houses balloted for Senator in separate session. The Republicans, following the caucus decision, gave Cullom thirty-three votes in the Senate and ninety-two in the House. The Democrats, to show their allegiance to Frankin MacVeagh, gave him eighteen votes in the Senate and sixty-one in the House. On Wednesday at noon the houses will meet in join session and the ballots taken will be announced. If all the members are present and obey the dictates of their party caucuses the vote will stand: Cullom, 125; MacVeagh, 79. Then the Senatorship contest will be over and all obstacles cleared away so the Legislature can get to work.

This is the third week of the Legislature, but so far nothing has been done beyond smoothing Senator Cullom's path. No committees have been appointed, and it is said that none will be completed before next week. Until they are arranged matters will remain at a standstill. This delay is explained in several ways, some of which do not redound to the credit of the Republican managers. The rush for good committeenhips has worried the Speaker and his advisers, the members of the Steering Committee nearly to death. With so much material to choose from the opinion prevails that the Speaker should be able to parcel out the places without much waste of time.

He Had Everything Ready to Run a Prize-Giving Lottery.

SOME MEDDLSOME DETECTIVES DROPPED IN AND SPOILED HIS GAME.

-Prizes as High as $15,000lays It Was Only a Trick to Boom

Detectives Bambrick and Zieglen, of the Central District, by arresting Michael Kraig, alias John M. Kingston, have doubtless been successful in saving an unsuspecting public a good many dollars. The charge upon which Kraig was locked up is of establishing a lottery, and while he denies that such was his intention, the printed matter slezed indicates otherwise.

Kraig has been employed for some time as at bar-tender at 1615 Wash street, but his appearance is more that of a law student than of a bar-tender.

The arrest was made at the office of the Slowson Printing Company, at 221 North Main street, just as Kraig was about to take away his printed matter. He refused to tell the detectives what his scheme was, simply saying that he did not intend to start a lottery. To a Post-Dispatch reporter, who saw him in the hold-over at 10 a. m., he said:

"My plan was simply to have a drawing. I was going to sell as many tickets as I could and then put the numbers in a box and have a drawing for the money I had got from the sale of the tickets. I just wanted to get up a little excitement about the saloon and draw a crowd together, because in anything like that the winner always spends a good lot of money. I expected to just keep enough to pay for the printing of the tickets."

DOSS CAUGHT.

The Alleged Fake Foot Racer in Jail at Decatur.

The local authorities received a telegram about 9 a. m. from Decatur, Ill., notifying them that Sam Doss, the alleged fake sprinter had been arrested in that city during the night. Doss is accused of having robbed John Wilkinson, a merchant of Herculaneum, Jefferson County, Mo., of $700 last Saturday on a supposed fake foot race that was arranged to be run last Saturday at Herculaneum by John Hauglin, a pal of Doss and an unknown, who is also involved in the allegred robbery. Wilkinson, who is a friend of Doss and Hauglin, loaned the former the money ostensibly to be used to back Hauglin in the race. Wilkinson went to see the race, suspected he was to be victimized, stopped the event, and the "athletes" and friends ran off. Wilkinson pursued them and one of the gang, Fred Herget, was caught in Carondelet. Herget, in the custody of the Sheriff of Jefferson County, was taken to Hillsboro (Mo.) Jail about 7 a. m.

Doss' friends, since his arrest at Decatur, have proceeded to have him arrested on a writ of habeas corps. Information to this effect reached here subsequent to the elegram announcing the arrest of Doss. The latter is now under $300 bond to appear within about two weeks before the Circuit Court of Murphysboro, Ill., to answerthe charge of robbing a citizen of Chester, Ill., out of $600 on a fake foot race.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The House Committee on the Judiclary had an open sension to-day to consider the charges against Judge Ricks of Cleveland. The Judge was present with his attorney, Virgil P. Kline. The Central Labor Union of Cleveland was represented by two attorneys, Arnold Green and Gen. Edward S. Meyer. But one member, Mr. Terry of Arkansas, was absent.

Chairman Culberson announced to Judge Ricks that the committee Invited him to appear if he saw proper, although he was not summoned and there was nothing obligatory in his appearance, and asked if he desired to make any statement.

appear if he saw proper, although he was not summoned and there was nothing obligatory in his appearance, and asked if he desired to make any statement.

The Judge said that the brief submitted by his lawyers covered the ground fairly and fully, but that he would be gild to answer any questions. At the suggestion of the chairman he made a statement. The cases in which improper receipt of fees was charged, he said, were analogous in character, or he would not have undertaken to complete the records. He shiered at length into various sums and figures involved and said: "I claim that I had a right to complete the records as I did. I claim I accounted satisfactorily to the government for all the moneys; that my successor's clerk lost nothing by that transaction, and that I acted strictly according to the system followed by the courts in such cases."

He stated that he had affidavits from Clerks of several courts to show that the practice of the Clerk to charge himself with the completed records in advance of their completion was a universal one. The charges for the work had been made eighteen months before he was appointed Judge and before he had any idea that he would be appointed. Chairman Culberson inquired why he had obliged to make returns until the work is done."

Had he done otherwise than he did it would have been necessary for him to advance the money, some $1.700, he said, when he became Judge, and run the risk of collecting it when the work was done.

Mr. Stone of Pennsylvania asked if it were not a fact that in all the Birdsell cases the fees were estimated in advance by himself and his successor as Clerk, and collected before the work was actually done, and the Judge said that it was.

Mr. Boatner asked him if there was any law authorising a Clerk to collect fees before the work is done?

Mr. Stone: "He has said that it was the general custom."

Judge Ricks: "Otherwise the Clerk and the Government would risk losing the costs, since parties might become insolvent or move from the district after the decree was entered and before the record was finished."

Then the guestion of the right to estimate since parties might become an entered and before the record was finished."

Then the question of the right to estimate the work without knowing the exact amount to be done was discussed, and the Judge said that the general average was about correct, as in some cases the work slightly exceeded the 'estimates and in others fell below.

In answer to Mr. Boatner's question as to what right he had after he became a Judge to complete cases which he had not reported to the Attorney General while clerk, the Judge said that he had no legal right to, but that his course was the most convenient to all parties. Regarding the right to collect for work not done, the Judge said that the advance charges were subject to review by counsel.

"Suppose the clerk should die," asked Mr. Boatner, "before he had done work for which he had received charges?"

"The cost could be collected of his bondsmen or from his estate."

Mr. Boatner: "But suppose they were insolvent, could I compel the clerk's successor to complete the work without paying for it again?"

solvent, could I compet the work without paying for it again?"
Judge Ricks admitted that he could not,
and in answer to the supposition that his successor objected to another clerk commise into the office to complete the records, said that it was a matter of comity and custom.

The supposition was cited by Mr. Balley that there might be errors in the records completed by the direction of a retired clerk which would be costly, and liability of his bondsmen having ceased with his term of office there would be no redress, and this sected considerable discussion. Judge Ricks stated, in answer to a ques-tion from Mr. Powers, that he had never passed upon his own account as Judge. Mr. Bailey inquired whether if a contest over the record should have been made he would not have been called upon to decide it, and the Judge said that as a matter of fact no contest had been made.

WASHINGTON D. C., Jan. 22.—There have been a number of conflicting reports with regard to the probable disposition of the East St. Louis bridge bill in the Senate. Among other reports, it was said that Senator Palmer had told Senator Vest that he would pay no more attention to the bill. When the Post-Dispatch correspondent asked Representative Forman about the report, he said: "It is very strange that Senator Palmer should make such a statement to Senator Vest, when no longer than yesterday he gave me his assurance that he would take advantage of the first opportunity to call up the bill and force it to an issue. The only objection Senator Palmer ever expressed against the bill in his various interviews with me was that it did not go far enough to remove the suspicion that it might go into another combination with the other bridge interests and keep up the old tolls. I told him that was not our fault. We had passed it in the House with a specific schedule of toll rates, but Senator Cockrell had struck it out in the Senate. The bridge company and the House is ready to accept the bill with a provision fixing the toll rate, so that all misapprehension as to combinations will be impossible."

Mr. Forman thinks the measure has a good chance of passing at this session. WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.-There

DID NOT WANT TO ESCAPE.

Havward, on Trial for Murder, Refuses to Join in a Jail Delivery.

Hayward, on Trial for Murder, Refuses to Join in a Jail Delivery.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 22.—Harry Hayward was indignant when he was brought into the court room to-day. His attorneys were also indignant, and Mr. Erwin lost no time in letting the court know the state of the defense's feelings. It was all due to a story printed this morning with reference to a recently attempted jail delivery. The Sherif had discovered a carefully planned conspiracy among the prisoners in the county jail for a midnight delivery. It had proceeded so far that a fine set of tools had been procured and six rivets taken out of the bars in a protected portion of the cage. The plan was to get through the cage, overpower the single night watchman and escape. But the suspicions of the Sheriff were aroused, and he caustid a search of the cells to be made. The discovery of the tools frustrated the plan.

The paper which published an account of the affair endeavored to connect Harry Hayward with the plot to escape, and ascribed to him the leadership in the affair. Attorney Erwin, addressing the court, declared that an explanation was due his client. He then detailed how one of the prisoners on the lower tier had passed up to Hayward, whose cell is on the upper tier, a bottle of acid with which he told him he could make his escape by using it to corrode the bars. Hayward at once told Erwin of the occurrence, and was advised to have nothing whatever to do with any such plot. He acquiesced, and it was determined to notify the authorities of the plan. Hayward did not care to gain the ill will of the other prisoners by playing the informed of the plot through Hayward that his connection with the affair should not be divulged. Mr. Erwin was very indigmant, therefore, at the publication.

Judge Smith said that the whole affair was outside of the trial, but that in view was outside of the trial, but that in view therefore, at the publication.

The Brolaski Case. The Brolaski Case.

The partnership affairs of H. Brolaski & Co. were again aired in court, the suit of Samuel Goetz against Harry W. Brolaski. Bart S. Adams and O. J. Baird being put on trial in Judge Klein's court.

The suit is for £2,000 on notes and £384 for goods sold. Goetz got a decree in his favor a few days ago in Judge Dillon's court, the attachment of Goetz having been attacked by other creditors. One of the issues is whether H. Brolaski, Jr., or Harry W. Brolaski was a partner in the firm; another whether one member of the firm, O. J. Baird, could wind up the partnership by deed of trust without consulting his co-partners. H. Brolaski & Co. had a shoe store on Eighth street.

The superintendent of the Gates avenue line of cars said to-day that the refusal of the linemen to work will preclude all possibility of the company running cars to-day. The fixing of electric wires is a business which requires much care and an expert knowledge. This strike is the greatest blow the companies have yet received, as in case of wires being cut car traffic will come to a complete standstill. Linemen can not be secured as easily as motormen and conductors.

UNION, Mo., Jan. 22.—The inquiry into the mental condition of Arthur Duestrow is now going on. Judge Hirzel opened court shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, and the jury was selected without any dif-ficulty. Gov. Johnson and Circuit Attorney Zachritz handed to the Judge their list of Zachritz handed to the Judge their list of challenges, each slde being allowed three. When the names of those who were to serve were announced, and they were sworn, it was found that R. B. Stoner, James Dickinson, John Stahlmann, W. H. Moore, W. D. Ziehms and A. C. Beasley were the challenged men. The jury, therefore, consisted of George Black, Robert Williams, John McFadden, C. H. Wehr, Henry Berner, Henry Z. Fowler, M. L. Sack, Martin Dietz, Wm. Beasley, F. X. Bardot, James A. Pilliod and Lewis Kewitt. and Lewis Kewitt.

GOV. JOHNSON ADDRESSES THE JURY. As soon as they had been sworn, Gov. Johnson arose without delay and in a short speech presented the issues as they appeared to him to the jury. He talked simply and without effort at display, and only said what he has so often repeated in regard

Mr. Zachritz announced that he would postpone his remarks until after the de-fense had finished with their case, and then the first witness, John C. Mead, a deputy sheriff in the St. Louis Probate Court, was put upon the stand. He had visited Dues-phined down by the lawyer to specific instances. He was sure that he never heard anyone talk like him.

The witness and Zachritz next got in a squabble. The witness stated that Duestrow acted as though he was really insane. "Was it good acting?" asked the little Prosecuting Attorney.

Meade began to explain and Zachritz tried to stop him. The lawyers on the other side joined in and five minutes was wasted, during which time however. Attorney Booth accused Zachritz of sharp practice in making the play on the word "acting."

Judge Hirzel, who was evidently not disposed to use up time in this sort of wrangling, soon stopped it and the examination continued.

Mr. Zachritz then asked the witness a question which seemed to foreshadow his position in a certain measure.

"Don't you know that there are hundreds of persons high in business and professional life who believe in hypnotism?" he inquired, but the witness did not admit that he did.

JAIL GUARD O'CONNOR.

John O'Connor, chief guard of the St. Louis City Jail, was the next witness called. He described Duestrow's appearance when he was first brought into the jail. He looked, then, bloated and as though he had been on: a long spree. The witness described how he was obliged to take the defendant's sheets and bedclothes away from him after his first attempt at suicide. The first attempt at suicide the witness had not seen, but his appearance after it was over was like a man who had been drinking heavily, as though on the border of delirium. After this he said Duestrow talked but little. He was this way for some months. Taylor, the negro, was set to watch him, but after five months Duestrow stalked to him about his wife and child, told him that they were alive and all right,

JAIL GUARD RUHR ON THE STAND.

As soon as court reconvened Barney, Ruhr, chief night guard at the St. Louis Jail, was put upon the stand by the defense. He has been a guard for fourteen years. He told of Duestrow's first attempt at suicide. He had been a little suspicious that Duestrow would do something of this sort. The Judge at this point recollected that the witness had not been sworn. This formality having been gone through with, the examination continued. The witness declared that everything he had said was true.

declared that everything he had said was true.

When he cut Duestrow down he said he was sure the man was nearly gone. If he had been two or three minutes later he felt sure the prisoner would have been dead. After being cut down he tried to get the guard's revolver by force, but was prevented from so doing. The second attempt was also described and the witness thought this was also in earnest.

Ruhr said that Duestrow did not act like a sensible man at all. He repeated this statement in various forms, at which the defendant laughed hestrilly. He grinned over at the imposing array of medical experts and pulled his mustache, as though he thought it all a good joke. Mr. Zachritz then took up the cross-examination.

trow often in the jail at the request of Attorney James T. Blair to attend to his wants and desires. He found him suspicious of the guards, of everyone about him. He talked in monosyllables. He seemed suspicious of Gov. Johnson, the witness said, because the latter would not get him out on bail. He wanted the witness to speak to Mr. Blair about it. In July the witness had a conversation with Duestrow about his wife. Duestrow had a cigarette picture of an actress with her leg thrown over the arm of a chair. Witness said that Duestrow was much worked over it, because he thought the picture was that of, his wife. Duestrow had told him that he had seen her, and when he (the witness) told him she was dead Duestrow became very angry. The witness also stated some of the theories on hypnotism which Duestrow told him his child was alive. Duestrow told him his child was alive. Duestrow told him hat when he saw the child he believed to be his in the Morsue he was hypnotized, and it was not really his. From what the witness had seen he concluded that Duestrow's mind was not sound.

During Meade's testimony the defendant sat unmoved in his chair, apeparing as an ordinary spectator.

Continuing the examination Mr. Johnson asked if Duestrow had ever manifested any illusions.

everybody was trying to make him so.

In answer to a direct question O'Connor stated that he would not swear whether Duestrow was of sane or insane mind, but that by comparison with other men, such as Jack Hayes, Dreher, Lay and others in the jall, who had been sent to the asylum, he was of the opinion that Duestrow was of this class, although in a different manner. On cross-examination, Mr. Zachritz endeavored to have the witness state that Lay had been sent to the penitentiary, but the question was stricken out on objection by Mr. Johnson.

"You got your judgment of Duestrow from what he said and not what he did, was it not?"

"Yes, sir."

"He might have been simulating all this,

"No, sir, I do not."
"Was it Taylor who called your attention to it?

"He has had his blankets with him ever since then?"
"Yes, sir."
"Taylor watched him, you say, at night?"
"Yes, sir."
"Duestrow has paid Taylor for watching him?"
"Yes, sir."
"Books were passed into Duestrow frequently?"

"He asked for them?"

Thus the life-saving work of the fender renders about the objections of the managers of greedy corporations to their use. The record of their humane service in protecting life and limb compared with the record of slaughter standing against the fenderless cars constitutes an overwhelming argument in their favor. It holds up to public indignation the companies whose indifference and greed panies whose indifference and greed check all attempts to prevent the sacri-fice of human life and limb on our streets. Happily, there is evidence that public sentiment is aroused to the outrage of corporation heartlessness and greed in this city. The fender petitions of the Post-Dispatch supply a means of making public sentiment known to the Municipal Assembly. This sentiment should be expressed in such volume and force that the greatest support may be given the

POLICE INCREASE.

In urging the increase of the police force of this city the Board of Police Commissioners emphasize the need of an im-provement which has been pressed upon the Municipal Assembly by the police authorities for years past without avail.

The inadequacy of the present force is clearly shown by the figures which the commissioners submit. The patrol force must be divided into two platoons of 232 men, who must cover 282 beats in 1,000 miles of streets or sixty-one and one-half square miles of territory. Each platoon must serve twelve hours each without relief, and there is no reserve squad, but when emergencies occur the regular patrol work must suffer. Fortunately, through exceptional care and favorabl stances, the city has not suffered from this manifest lack of adequat force. But it is impossible to guarante mmunity from suffering in the future. The plan suggested of increasing the orce to a number of patrolmen which will ake it possible to divide it into three eight-hour squads has been repeatedly urged by the police authorities. It has received the unqualified indorsement of all who have given the subject intelligen attention. It would enable the authorities to meet all the requirements of the city in the matter of reserves.

The great growth of the city has created new needs in the policing of it, as in other matters. The police force must be organized on a basis to meet emergencies be-fore they occur. It should at least be rendered adequate for ordinary demands s promptly as possible.

CENTRAL BUSINESS DISTRICTS.

So far as widening the streets in the vicinity of the Union Depot is concerned, the matter should have been attended to long ago. The concentration of passenger traffic at our depot is certainly the greatest and most varied to be found in any city in this country or Europe. All suburban and through trains of our railroad system arrive and depart from Twentieth and Market streets, while in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia such trains are dispersed over a number of different localities—the same is the case in London and other European cities. In view of this fact it is certainly extraordinary that our city authorities made no attempt to wider was determined upon As we understand Mayor Walbridge's Eighteenth street was not dictated by ndifference as to the necessity for changes in the locality, but rather by the conviction that the widening of other streets is more immediately necessary— Market street, for instance, which directly connects with the central business districts to the east. In this we think the Mayor is right, but nevertheless his veto was not well considered, for any improvement in the locality is better than

Whether the Assembly was wise or no in taking up Eighteenth street first need not be discussed. The bill was a beginning in a long neglected work and other streets can be considered later. Nearly all the streets in the vicinity of the depot are too narrow, and any changes that will facilitate traffic should be supported. In the recent discussion before the Commercial Club the necessity for im-

ortant changes in the width of streets in the business center was very conclu

The speech of Representative Jones of Virginia against the granting of a pension to Gen. McClernand appears to have been somewhat misreported. His objec-tions were based chiefly on the fact that the report on the case did not show that it was a meritorious one, and his remarks were directed against the practice of granting pensions to persons already well provided for. He also opposed the great distinction made between officers and privates.

Mr. Jones said he believed that if those who pay the taxes and feel the burdens of government could realize how, day after day, officers and widows of officers who are drawing $30 a month are by special acts of Congress placed upon the pension rolls at $100 a month, some of the pension rolls at $100 a month, some of the gentlemen who cannot now be convinced that this is the grossest discrimination and rankest injustice to the destitute private soldier or the suffering widow of a private soldier would change their opinions. One lady in Washington drawing a pension of $2,000 spent more than that for the flowers displayed at her receptions during one winter. Another, a Captain's widow, whom it is proposed to give $100 a month already has a new to give $100 a month, already has a pen sion of $20, has a place in the Treasur, Department at $1,000 or $1,200 a year, and draws money from property that sh who are living in affluence and upon whom no one is dependent.

All that Mr. Jones says is true. Congressmen of all parties have been eager to oblige every person with the shadow of a claim on the Government. That Mr. Jones should see injustice in the difference between an $8 to $12 pension for a faithful private soldier and a $100 pension for a Captain is not especially outrageous. And however much pensions may be discussed, they will continue to be granted indiscriminately. It is hardly worth while to condemn Mr. Jones.

License Saloon Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Your caricature of Sir Pullman illustrating the bill to reduce the price of his sleepcear berths was a daisy. But while law tinkers are after him why do they not pass a law compelling all sleeping-car and railroad companies who traffic in in-toxicating liquors to pay a license, or, rather, pay a revenue to the State. I ad-mit that it is impossible to reach them unrather, pay a revenue to the State. I admit that it is impossible to reach them under the present law unless you employ a detective force to trap them, and who will do it?—or somebody who has a grievance against the company puts up a job on it. Revenue we want. Our law tinkers are breaking their necks to devise means to reduce expenses and to raise revenue. Now here is a trade which is entirely untaxed, and a trade which can stand taxing. There can be a law passed compelling them to pay a certain amount into the State Treasury at stated times for each car or for each trip, make the railroad companies file reports with the State Auditor to keep a check on them. Attach heavy penalties for a volation of the law and at the same time attach heavy penalties on all who are charged with carrying out the provisions of this law.

You have taken up the people's cause in many instances successfully, now advocate this cause and push it, so that not only this State, but also other States, and especially the States whose capitols Sir Pullman saw in his dream, will adopt laws to compel sleeping-car and railroad companies to pay a revenue for their liquor traffic.

"Woman's Sphere."

"Woman's Sphere."

To the Editor of the Fost-Dispatch.
Glancing through the columns of Sunday's Post-Dispatch, a paragraph under the caption "Woman's Sphere," caught my eye. And I smile at the assumption of the individual who presumes to limit the sphere of action of any other individual. When one puts himself in the place of the Almighty, and says to another "Thus far but no farther shall thou go," It looks to me as if he was very much "out of his sphere."

The possession of a talent presupposes the duty of using it, and as God is presumably the giver of the talent or capability to perform any of the duties of life, to say that a woman must not exercise her talent in a given direction is equivalent to saying that the Almighty has made a mistake in the bestowal of his gifts.

Then again, a very severe condemnation is pronounced upon those who fail to use the talent given them through fear or any other reason. What answer them can those make when arraigned at the last great assiss to the charge that they have tried their best to hinder others from the free use of their gifts.

In use the side of the sharpener forms a right angle with the file, to make it impossible to file anything but a true plane on the skate, or to round the edges. The point is made that as the file wears it can be moved its full length on four sides, thus giving a large amount of filing surface.

The property consists of $42 in money, a certificate for $60 in the Astna-Building Association, a certificate of deposit for $100 in the Parmers' and Minery Bank at Bonne Terre, Mo., and two watches worth together about $5. If no legal heir is found inside of two years this property will be turned into the school fund. Dr. Richardson claims to have learned that the man's death was due to lead polsoning. For eight years Narten was a weigher for the $t. Joe Lead Co. at Bonne Terre, and in that way is supposed to have contracted the disease. Those who knew him best in Bonne Terre say that he had been a practicing physician in Germany and that may account for the quantities of medicines, etc., found in his room. It is also said that he has a daughter living somewhere in $t. Louis.

He had a friend to do the work, and I was to be final stakeholder. Friday he met me with his friend, whom he introduced to me as Robinson. Nothing occurred until Saturday forenoon, when Robinson laid out his plans to take another partner, which Love arranged, choosing Mulligan O'Brien. Love was to drive Robinson to Kankakee as a traveling man and was supposed to come back alone, while I was to hire a horse and bugsy and drive to the outskirts of the town and O'Brien was to take the rig and go on. A Millionaire's Son Whom Wealth Can-

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 22.—B. F. Hageman, said to be the son of a Philadelphia millionaire, is under arrest here, charged with passing bogus checks. The police say that this is not Hageman's first offense, he having been arrested a year ago for the theft of a lot of jewelry from Miss ida Bennett, who lives on Chestnut street, in Chicago. This scrape, it is alleged, was hushed up by the young man's relatives. At that time, it was thought that he was also wanted up by the young man's relatives. At that time, it was thought that he was also wanted in Fort Worth. Tex., for passing bogus and forged checks. Telegrams were sent to the Chief of Police there, and it was learned that all of his difficulties in that place had been settled by his father. In several other cities it is said that young Hageman has committed felonies of various kinds, and that his father has spent thousands of dollars in trying to keep him from the penitentiary. He is now charged with passing bogus checks. R. S. Stephens of 366 Calumet avenue, the complainant, claims that he sold Hageman a diamond ring and accepted a check for $115 in payment. He also alleges that on the day previous he cashed one of the young man's checks for $20. Later, he says, he found that they were worthless, and reported the matter to the police.

After young Hageman had secured Stephens' diamond, he went to the Illinois Central depot and took a train for New Orleans, Before leaving the depot, however, it is said that he picked up a vallee which belonged to an English woman and checked it to his destination. This was what led to his destination. This was what led to his destination. Romantic Story of a Woman in Whose Veins Flows the Blood of Three Races.

Romantic Story of a Woman in Whose Veins Flows the Blood of Three Races.
WINDSOR, Ontario, Jan. 22.—The American Consul at Windsor, Capt. M. P. Thatcher, has a case in hand which borders on the romantic. He was appealed to recently by Mrs. Lucy Dupee, an aged colored woman of this city, to assist her in regaining her father's estate, which she claims her brothers and sisters were enjoying.

Mrs. Dupee says that her grandfather was Maj. Ross of the British army, scion of an old English family who was in the American revolutionary war and who was stationed at Boston at the time her story opens. What she says of him is mostly tradition. She states she often heard her father tell of her grandfather's romantic marriage, and believes the story true.

Her grandfather was quite a ladies' man, and was a leader in the official society of the day. He was partial to beauty in face and form, and did not confine his liking to the Caucasian race. At a school reception one day he was struck by the majestic bearing and fine lineaments of one of the pupils—a girl of color. That was not a defect in Ross' eyes, for he fell violently in love with the dusky beauty. Making her acquaintance, it was not long before she reciprocated his affection. She was placed in the school by her father, a king of some African tribe, which one Mrs. Dupee does not know, but presumes her grandmother was brought to the American school through the influence of Christian missionaries. The couple were finally married, and Ross took his bride to England. There he met with a cold reception from his relatives and friends, who did not wish to associate with a largerss. Ross and his beautiful wife were practically ostracised, having to depend upon themselves for their society. The day of the sons was George W., the fasture of the story is that while the first Mrs. Ross was a full-blooded negress, she and her husband owned many slaves.

One of the sons was George W., the fasture of the persent Mrs. Dupee. He must have inherited from his father disregard for the discrimination toward them. Finally the estracism became unbearable, and the parents removed with their brood to Toronto, Ontarlo. In the meantime Mr. Ross was forehanded, and had accumulated what was in those days considered quite a fortune. He gave his children as good an education as money would buy, but still could not overcome the caste feeling, because in the veins of his children flowed the blood of three races. Finally he and his Indian princess were gathered to their fathers and the children were left to their fathers and the children were left to their own devices.

Lucy, the subject of this sketch, was a bitthesome girl, and was quite a belle among her associates. She met a young British soldier named Preston, who was stationed near Toronto. He was a negro, but was not a blemish in Lucy's eyes. Her relatives were shocked when they learned of her infatuation, and tried by every means in their power to part the couple. They were unsuccessful, and the day that Lucy married the man of her choice she was discowned by her brothers and sisters, and time has not softened them. She and her husband lived happily until 1865, when the latter died. Lucy remained a widow a short time, when she again committed a "measillance," this time marrying an American negro named Dupee, who was a soldier in the Civil War. The couple lived in Windsor many years, and when Dupee died his widow was left in poverty. She finally secured a pension for Dupee's services in the war, and with that and her own exertions has managed to just about exist.

pee's services in the war, and with that and her own exertions has managed to just about exist.

The fortune the old lady is after is her share of the estate left the children by her father, and also property in Wheeling owned by her uncle. She does not know the extent of the estates left by her father and uncle, but presumes they are quite extensive.

Mrs. Dupee relates that her brothers and sisters have a violent antipathy to negroes and to this day none of them are married, living in their home at/Toronte, a group of old maids and bachelors. The explanation the old lady gives for this state of affairs is that the Rosses thought themselves too good to marry "beneath" them, and they did not unite with Caucasians because they did not wish to humiliate any one of whom they thought enough to propose marriage.

Mrs. Dupee is now if years old, and is quite active for a woman of that age. Her complexion is that of a mulatto, but her hair is straight and her features are good. Her conversation denotes that she either received a good education or had acquired a command of English by association or reading. She now feels quite joyful at the prospect of securing means enough to insure a peaceful end to her old age.

Capiain Thatcher thinks the Wheeling property has long since been eschaeted to the state or that it has been sold or resold so many times for delinquent taxes it cannot be recovered. If that should prove to be the case, she will need to rest her hopes in Toronto.

OF INTEREST TO MANUFACTURERS.

A Legal Decision That Affects Makers of Farm and Musical Instruments.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 21.4 case of great importance to manufacturers and retail dealers has just been decided by United States Judge Grosscup. A retail haberdasher of the name of Schuster was closed up on an execution and the United States Marshal was instructed to sell the goods at public sale. A local firm of wholesale manufacturers of collars and cuffs filed as intervenors a petition claiming that among the stock of the delinquent haberdasher was a large consignment of collars and cuffs which belonged to them. The intervenors claimed that three years ago they made a venors a petition claiming that among the stock of the delinquent haberdasher was a large consignment of collars and cuffs which belonged to them. The intervenors claimed that three years ago they made a contract with Schuster to furnish him with a stock of their goods, retaining, however, the proprietary interest, Schuster paying them at the end of each month for the amount of his sales during the month. Counsel for the other creditors arrued that any such contract was ejearly against public policy, as it gave the consignee an appearance of ownership and enabled him to get a credit that otherwise he could not obtain. The argument proved weighty with the court, for Judge Grosscup sustained his nosition and dismissed the wholesalers bill for want of equity. This decision will have especial weight with manufacturers of agricultural and musical instruments, as it is an open secret that retail dealers in these classes of goods sell almost entirely on commission.

STATE OF MISSOURI, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

JEFFERRON CITY, Jan. 21, 1885.
To the House of Representatives, has been following resolution. "adopted by the House of Representatives of the Thirty-eighth General Assembly: of the Board of Equalisation, when they found it necessary to increase the taxable wealth of the State Board of Equalisation, when they found it necessary to increase the taxable wealth of the State, placed an additional value of $85,00,000 upon the farm property of the State, instead of the Assembly, and to be found at page 549 of the House of Representatives of the Thirty-eighth General Assembly which is weight of Equalization at its last meeting "placed an additional value of $85,00,000 upon the farm property of the State. Acting unwittingly misled into making a statement which is without foundation at its last meeting placed an additional value of $85,00,000 upon the farm property of the State. On the State. Acting unwittingly misled into making a statement which is without foundation at its last meeting placed an additional value of $85,00,000 upon the farm property of the State. Nor was any such thing done at all. The resolution, therefore, is predicated upon a mistake in fact. In view of that I might, with perfect propriety and without the least discourtesy, dismiss the matter wi

erty, which is divided between town and country, from the discussion, it will be seen that the additional value placed upon farm or acre property by the State Board of Equalization, instead of being $55,000,000, was only about $28,000,000.

In this connection it is well to note the important and interesting fact that the increase made in 1894 in the assessed value of real estate in the two cities of St. Louis and Kansas City is substantially equal to the increase made for that year on all the balance of the real estate in all the cities, towns and counties of the State. By many it is contended that city real estate is assessed relatively much higher than acre property. This I do not admit, and yet I am not prepared, with the data at hand, wholly to deny it. I know it has been the earnest desire of the State board to treat all alike, and they have endeavored to secure as great equality as the nature of the case would admit. The aggregate amount of taxes paid upon city and town lots is much larger than that paid upon acre property. The total assessed valuation placed upon farm or acre property in 1894 amounted to $300,820,048, while that placed upon city and town lots was $337,700.600. The excess of the assessment on city and town realty over acre property was $30,780,661.

The State tax levied in 1894 on all real estate amounted to $1,789,579. Of this tax there was levied upon acre property, in round numbers, the sum of $767,000, and the remainder Legarly $1,000,000 was levied upon city and town lots. The aggregate tax imposed upon city and town realty was about 30 per cent greater than that collected from acre property. It is undeniably true that a much larger total revenue is derived from city and town reason for that contention.

CAUSE OF THE INCREASE.

The increases made by the State Board resulted inevitably from the effort to equalize of the State. It is the business of the board to equalize assessments, not between individuals or the subdivisions of counties, but between the counties themselves. It best 126 holles for reducing the value place of the control of the

by the corporate officials.

I refer to this fact so that it may be seen that the railroad corporations pay taxes upon a large amount of property used in connection with their business other than that assessed by the State Board of Equalization. In assessing railroad property the State Board endeavored to ascertain as nearly as possible the actual value of the property of each corporation. A docket was prepared and certain corporations were assigned and set down for hearing on given days. The various county and railroad officials interested were notified of the assignments made, both by letters mailed to them and by advertisements printed in the metropolitan and local papers, and all persons interested, or capable of imparting information of value, were urgently invited to appear before the board to make such statements, or to give such information, as they might deem important to be considered.

The board has had no wish to make war upon railroads, nor to show them any favors. Under the law, for purposes of taxation, railroads are simply properties owned by American citizens; and every consideration of right, justice and law demands that they be treated exactly as other property is treated. If they are assessed to low in comparison with other property, the valuations should be increased; and for like reason, if they are assessed relatively too high, the valuations should be lowered. No property should be either increased or decreased arbitrarily or without good reason. The courts would not, and ought not to, permit such a thing to be done, even if attempted, particularly if it should result in a gross and manifest inequality of assessment. The only proper thing to do is to do right, and to treat all interests with the utmost fairness.

The State Board has labored assiduously to assestain as nearly as practicable the company with Tom Blair and Jim McKen-sle. Bemar met Turner and opened fire upon him, when Turner, Blair and Mc-Kenzie began shooting at Bemar, the latter fell riddled with bullets, and Blair boasted that he had killed the Captain. He was acrallroad or telegraphic communication. Since 183 Meacham Beat has from time to time been the scene of many thrilling tragedies, and the full truth of all the murders and outraged that have been committed there will probably never be known. In that year a band of men who first acted as regulators and called themselves "Hell at the Breach." but who afterwards developed into full-fiedged outlaws and terrorized the community, was formed. The band, though once almost exterminated by the citizens, has recently been revived. Its remaining members are now in Meacham Beat, and the community is kept in donstant terror by their movements and ihreats. Many citizens who were active in suppressing the gang two years ago have been threatened and are in coustant dread of assassination. The Meachamites have openly vowed vengeance upon their, "persecutors," and the latter, who have an organization of regulators of their own may be driven to the necessity of exterminating the outlaws, should another outbreak occur, as the feeling is intense.

The exact object of the organization known as "Hell at the Breach," which was formed by the Meachamis, seems to have been to monopolize that section of the country for themselves, to set aside existing laws, divide the land and property, and not only resist and drive out all persons who were not members of their band, but to prevent others from ancroaching upon what they conceived to be their "neck of the woods." Their victims at first were their creditors, but finally all who opposed them in their depredations were marked for murder. Hillert distilling and a general defiance of the laws followed.

Attempts to arrest members of the band usually resulted in the death of the officers. Informers were ambushed in the dark and shot. Several officers fell victims to the murderous guins of the Meachamites. Robberles were frequent and a reign of terror existed. Barns were robbed and burned, horses stolen, and men who opposed them were held up on the highway or shot from a clump of bushes by night. T

Mr. Marsh's Bill Making This the Duty of the Secretary of State-Cigarett Taxing Measure Costs in Crimina

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 22.-The McGinnis memorial exercises were held in the Senate chamber before the members of the Senate chamber before the members of both houses, and a large number of visit ors, this morning. The portrait of the decased Senator, properly draped, hung is front of the Chief Clerk's desk. The memorial addresses were made by Senatori Peers, Mott, Yeater, Kennish and Wurdeman. The wife of the deceased St. Louis Senator, her three sons and grandchild occupied places in front of the house, facing the audience.

Senator, her three sons and grandchild occupied places in front of the house, facing the audience.

By an overwheiming vote the House yesterday supported its Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence in ordering to engrossment House bill No. 75, by Mr. Moran of St. Joseph, which provides, as engrossed, that when a continuance in a criminal cause its granted at the petition of the defendant, the costs of the State's witnesses shall all be taxed against the defendant; and that in no case shall such costs be taxed against the State. The effect of such a provision would be to deprive the State's witnesses of any fees in the large majority of criminal cases, the greater number of defendants being poor persons. It was pointed out by Mr. Avery of Linceln County and others who opposed the bill, that this was an unjust discrimination against witnesses; and if the witnesses for the State in cases where the defendant was penniless could be extended so as to embrace Judge, jury, Sheriff and Prosecuting Attorney. It was also argued that after the State's witnesses had been once summoned and the defense had secured a continuance and they had been sent home without any pay, they would find a way to clude the service of summons at the next sitting, and the ends of justice would be defeated. But the apparent economy of the thing was very attractive to Chairman Davis of the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, and to Mr. Moran, who is also a retrenchment reformer of the pennyroyal stripe; and the rural contingent of the House backed them that treaches the Senate.

Mr. Moran stated that the measure will have a very short shrift and deep burial when it reaches the Senate.

Mr. Moran stated that the principle underlying the bill is that the citizen owes something to his Government and good order for which he ought not to be paid; and the fact that such good citizen may have been subpoensed on the part of the defendant. The second principle is to require the Prosecuting Attorney to exercise diligence and not subpoens an entire neighborhood,

The Republican House has evinced The Republican House has evinced its unreadiness to give formal endorsement to the vaporings of fis religio-political cranks By a vote of 77 to 40 it tabled the Hinds charity commission bill, which is the creat ure of a certain organization of religio-political cranks in Kansas City. The bill provided for the creation in every city organized under a special charter, as authorized by sec. 18, of art. 9 of the constitution of a Board of Charity Commissioners, constituted of the constitution of the const or in part by the city; and the Mayor was to have no power to respont any person so removed. The fundamental idea behind the measure was said by those who had made it their business to analyze it, to provide in St. Joseph, Kansas City and other cities having a number of religious charitable institutions for inquisitorial control thereof by a body of politicians, and it was the presentation of this possibility to the House that brought about its defeat.

Representative Drabelle of St. Louis lost an excellent opportunity to lay bare the very evident incapacity of several members of the House clerical force yesterday when he assumed the presentation of his criticism of the manner in which the proceedings are reported in the official paper. He could, if was believed, have caried his point had he but handed over the formal presentation to a Republican member, of whym there were several ready to become at least the apparent champions. Instead of doing this, however, the gentleman made the showing up himself, thus placing all the Republicans of the House on the defensive, and when they failed to disturb him by parliamentary objection they allowed his painstaking effort to fail through sheer lack of resistance. They simply let him finish his speech (which was very much more moderate than the occasion called for) and then resumed the transaction of other business without any remark whatever. Mr. Drabeile had in that badly defaced copy of the official paper, with its thirty-nine material errors in two short columns of large type, the material for a very effective political "roast" but his desire to appear perfectly fair prevented him from utilising it to its limit. It a axiomatic to observe that if the same provocation had been placed in the hands of Meesirs. Mott. Klene or Wurdenann of the Sensite the incident would not have been so tamely dismissed.

Senafor Love's eigarette taxing bill is by all odds the most radical measure of the kind that has been presented to this Assembly, and the temper of both branches seems to be for its immediate passage. It has been read twice and will undoubtedly be favorably resported to-morrow, and Mr. Love says that if he is able to remain at the expital until Friday it will be resady for the House. The first section forbids the sale of cigarettes made in whole or in part of tobacco without taking out a Reenstherfor. The minimum pensity for violation is $600. The license fee, to be paid to the Scotch part of the sound of the traffic, an

"I advise everyone who is sick or ailing to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and be convinced of its wonderful power to cure, as I have been." Thousands of people are to-day in a pre-dicament more or less like that of Mrs.

Dyer. They may not be so seriously sick as she was, but they may come even to a worse condition if they allow their present ailments and weaknesses to run on. That is fo say, it is legislative supposition that before consideration of the measure is finished the "fat will be fried out" of some other things besides the ribevering of the meek-eyed bovine. After the various committee chairmen had unsuccessfully urged their claims upon the measure, Mr. Lyman of Kansas City, who will be against the bill as soon as it becomes a parliamentary target, arose and said: "Mr. President, I think that all these gentlement ought to have a turn at that bill, and I make this suggestion: Let the Judiciary Committee first have it, because there is a contract provision in section 10, and of course they ought to pass on that. Then send it to the Agricultural Committee, because butter is pretty well recognized as an agricultural product; and then the Committee on Manufactures ought to take it under advisement, because the bill interferes with a manufacturing industry; and the Labor Committee also has an interest in it, because its passage would interfere with the employment of labor. After that it might go to Criminal Jurisprudence, because of the penal dause; and on to the Public Heath Committee for reasons that are obvious. There is also an appropriation clause in it, and therefore the appropriat to St. Louis was made by Speaker Russell yesterday afternoon just before adjournment. It was that Farwell Walton of St. Louis will exchange places with Wm. T. Gay of Iron County, the former going to the Committee on Private Corporations and the latter to the Committee on Agricultura. When General Manager Durant of the Bell company was in the House on Wednesday the first and almost the only member he consulted with was Mr. Walton, and he followed Walton down upon the floor and conversed with him for some time near Mr. Walton's seat. This is a liberty that even Flanagan, Pheips and Carroll, the railroad lobylists, who are well understood to have a virtual mortgage upon a large number of members, have not taken during the session. They have, so far, limited their missionary labors to the smoking room, or, at most, to the wide space behind the rail. But Durant went right to Walton's seat, called him aside, had five minutes' conversation and then recired to the portion of the House locally known as the "lobby." And it was, perhaps, well that he did retire, for there were several members who noticed his presence and the advisability of asking by what right he was in that place was being discussed when he quietly withdrew. He had several talks with Walton after that, and when Walton was interviewed about his own bill and asked why he had not placed the figures lower than $60, he replied in almost the same words, used by Durant in explaining why telephone rentals could not be put lower than $100: "Because good service could not be given." It is un-Prices-Real Estate.

Durant in explaining why telephone rentals could not be put lower than $100: "Because good service could not be given." It is understood that when Walton's bill comes up for engrossment a motion will be made to insert the figures $40 for $50, with the sole idea in view of finding out where he stands. But the transfer of Mr. Walton from a committee that has nothing to do with corporations to one that has everything to do with them was very generally commented on yesterday. Walton went to St. Louis by the afternoon train. which cost the company $16.50 a foot. Since then they have sold it out at prices ranging up to $50 a foot for the best improved portion of the tract, which has almost all been built up. The Spaiding avenue frontage was the only remaining unimproved portion of the tract. Now that the Washington avenue line has a branch running out Spaiding avenue to King's highway, the purchasers of the property will fully improve it for the spring market.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 22—William S. Marsh of Clinton County has introduced into the House a bill providing for the examination of banks and fund companies. It places the examination in the hands of the Secretary of State, because he has all of the records. Mr. Marsh is a farmer and a banker, and is president of the Holt Bank of Clay County. He is opposed to the creation of a State bank inspection department, because of the expense. The only additional help that would be required would be two or three examiners. The control of the prosecutions is placed with the Secretary of State. Mr. Marsh is in favor of dealing with companies under a separate act. The act provides pensities for neglect and corrupt acts on the part of the examiners as well as for violations by the banks and the companies.

As noted elsewhere, Gov. Stone laid before the House a special message on State taxation. After the reading of the message, Mr. Bothwell moved that 1,000 copies be printed, which motion was carried.

The House then took a recess until 2 p. m., to attend the McGinnis memorial exercises, in the Senate.

Euclid Park Property Brings Good

The Euclid Park Improvement Co. have sold through their agent, Charles J. Punnerman, 5864 feet of ground on the north side of Spalding avenue, between Euclid avenue and King's highway, for 16,500. The ground was purchased by the Euclid Park Improvement Co., composed of Messrs. E. H. Ehrler, W. H. Foster, E. H. Coffin, L. A. Manawall, A. C. Trebus, J. C. Carroll, A. A. B. Woerhelde and others. The history of this piece of property is decidedly interesting and illustrates the wonderful enhancement of the value of St. Louis residence property. Euclid Park was plotted from the old Cupples homestead in May, 1881, when it was purchased by the Euclid Park Improvement Co., who figure as grantors in the present deal, and who have in this deal cleahed out their interest in the property. The old Cupples mansion was wrecked and the property subdivided into 4,600 front feet, which cost the company 15 60 a foot Since.

UNWORTHY, BUT FORGIVEN. it came the cries of badly frightened women and men.
"My God! the hotel is on fire!" he ex-claimed. "It is built of wood from cellar to roof tree; it is crammed with people; and I am close under the shingles on the eleventh floor!" The bed stood in the middle of the room

He went out onto the landing in his night-gear as he was, and attempted to descend. Columns of gray vapor which stung the eyes and noerrils roiled up the shaft of the stairway, and, looking down over the balusters, he saw through the smoke arms of tawny fiame which shot greedily up toward him. The heat was terrific; it drove him back to his room even before the smoke forced a retreat. Baked by the continued heat of summer, the great wooden hotel was burning as though it had been annointed with tar.

Carr ran back to his bedroom and stood in the midst of the floor, trembling like a leaf. He still held in his fingers the crumpied letter in a woman's handwriting—his wife's; but remembering it, broke out into new fury, tore it into tiny squares, which fluttered like white butterfiles before the rising draught.

"Greatly, heartless wereth that she is." went out onto the landing in hi haze.

The man on the bed tossed from side to side uneasily, rolled on his back, lay with his mouth upon the pillow. In his right hand he held crunched a letter written in woman's writing, and as certain waves of fream crept over him he rumpled the letter savagely and mumbled through his clinched seeth words of inarticulate fury. At last his lream seemed to culminate, and he broke into a paroxysm of coughing, which awoke im. His senses, dim at first, drew rapidly o the alert. His eyes so recently glued tith sleep, opened quickly to their fullest tretch. His nostrils worked like the nostils of a dog on a trail.

He felt a numbing rush through the air, a jarring thud as of ten thousand earth-quakes, suns shooting before his eyes—and that was all. Oblivion held him entirely. Later on the doctor presented the patient, over whom there had been some contro-

POLITICAL DEBTS

To Be Paid by the Removal of Brown and Zevely.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 22.—It is as good as settled that Frank Brown, official reporter of the Supreme Court and J. W. Zevely, State Librarian, will be removed as soon as the Supreme Court can have a full sitting, the illness of Judge MacFarlane alone postponing action. It is given out by the friends of Brown and Zevely that Judges Sherwood, Burgess, Barclay and Rownson will vote together for removal, and they further claim that Judge Burgess will be allowed to name the successor to Brown as official reporter and that Judge Barclay will name the librarian to succeed Zevely, Judges Sherwood and Robinson being indifferent to aught but removal. Tyson S. Dines, a resident lawyer of Denyer, Colo., but formerly of this State, and the man who put Judge Burgess in nomination, is now in this city, which fact lends color to the above statement. Why a man, a resident of Colorado, should be given the position over citisens of Missouri, is not clearly understood. It is further claimed that one or two State officials are interested in the deal. It is a complicated political fight and a plain attempt to pay off old scores:

INDICTMENTS DEFECTIVE.

Pros'd by Mulvihill.

Pros'd by Mulvihill.

The cases charging oppression in office against Sergt, George T. McNamee, and Officers Thomas Marphy were noile prossed in the Court of Criminal Correction by Prosecuting Attorney Thomas Mulvihill. The officers were alleged to have been committed at the last election, and the officers were indicted by the Grand-jury. Mr. Mulvihill in explaining to the court why he noile prossed the cases said that he did it because the indictments were defective in not specifying acts. The Prosecuting Attorneys Kent and Ferriss, the legal advisors of the Citizens' Safety Committee, regarding the cases and that they were of the same opinion as himself as to what should be done with the cases.

Attorney Ferriss was present in court when Mr. Mulvihill made the statement. There are three other similar cases against officers which will come up next Thursday. They will be noile prossed also. They are against Officers Ohn Clifford, James Maher and Anthony C. Walsh.

Prosecuting Attorney Mulvihill in speaking to a Post-Dispatch reporter regarding the cases, said: 'In order to be guilty of oppression in office you must do some act. The allegations were of a negative character, According to the allegations if there was any offense it was neglect of duty, which would be a matter to be brought before the Police Board. I doubt if they could prove even that. There was no act of oppression in office alleged. The officers were anxious for trial and wanted to walve the defects in the indictments to be used in a motion in arrest of judgment in the event of conviction. I would not consent to anything like that."

ON 'CHANGE.

WHEAT—The liquidation that started yesterday was continued to-day, beginning right at the opening. On the decline that followed more and more long wheat came to out for sale. The enly buyers of any consequence were shorts, but they bought, heavily on the breaks. Low point this foremon was just ie below yesterday's close, is but from this reacted %c, though closing off from that and %6%c below yesterday. There was not a thing to buy on this morning, except, if one was short, to take in profits, or, if one was bullishly inclined—the generally light receipts at the markets. These were larger of winter wheat than they have been for some time, 110,000 bu arriving at Western markets, but still light of spring wheat—166 cars at Northwestern points. The early cables were extremely unfavorable, reporting English markets wheat than they have been for some time, 110,000 bu arriving at western markets, but still light of spring wheat—166 cars at Northwestern points. The early cables were extremely unfavorable, reporting English markets were handed downward at the opening. There was some buying around 52 for May on New York advices of foreigners buying and not the theory that a reaction was due, but the reaction was very slight and soon followed by a break to a still lower level.

Clearances from four ports of $3,000 packs, and and weak and Continental markets lower—Paris ic, Berlin ¼c and Antwerp %c—but did not weaken domestic markets any more, though the close was far from strong.

WOOL.

The local market continues steady and unchanged. Manufacturers are not anticipating their wants, as the purchases of Americans at London do not indicate any higher prices for home-grown wool in the near future.

There was a fair selection at the London wool auction sales yesterday. Competition is steadily improving. Americans were strong buyers of the finest New South Wales wool. About 700 or 500 bales were taken. Last night very full rates were asked. Yorkshire and the Continent are good general buyers. The offerings were 10,110 bales, of which 850 were withdrawn.

WITNESS FOR FITZ.

He Will Swear Riordan's Skull Was Fractured Previously.

OOR WAS THROWN FROM A HAGE YEARS

'Lanky Bob" Will Not Give the Wit-Will Hurt His Cause-Sporting News

Bob Fitzsimmons has run across an important witness, whom he will use in case he is ever tried for the killing of poor Con Riordan at Syracuse, N. Y., some three months ago. According to Fitz, the unknown formerly trained Riordan, and will swear that the dead puglilst, some years ago, was thrown out of a hack, alighting on his head and sustaining a wound two inches long and down to the skull. The physician who attended Riordan at the time has also been located, and admits that the skull might have been fractured, as Riordan, intoxicated at the time, jumped out of the chair before his head had been half dressed. Fitz claims that the Syracuse doctors who made the autopsy on Riordan's body after the killing told him that, while the blow dealt Riordan undoubtedly precipitated his death, the underlying cause was a previous wound.

his death, the underlying cause was a previous wound.

"I have this party's name and address," said Lanky Bob Monday night, "but I don't propose to make known who he is until I can get an affidavit from him concerning what he has toid me in a letter. The first time I learned of him was when he wrote to me recently. In this communication he mentioned the above facts and I realized at once how important it might be for me to get the statement sworn to. That's why I will not give out his name and address until I get what I want from him. Of course, it may seem foolish for me to think that any one would fix this man on me, but I know certain people in New York who would go out of their way to do me harm, especially one man, who, I think, is behind this matter, and I am not going to let him catch me napping."

Belling Pilimmer, bantam champion of the world, and Australian Billy Murphy, exbantam-weight champion of the world, the most formidable rivals of George Dixon, laughed heartily at the result of the Dixon-Griffo match. Both are of the opinion that the contest was something of a fake. They believe that Griffo "pulled" to Dixon.

"Don't tell me that Griffo couldn't have bested Dixon," said Plimmer, "I saw Griffo fight Jack McAuliffe, and anybody that can do what he did to such a wonderful man as McAuliffe is can whip all the Dixons in the world. I'll bet that match was fixed's ot hat if Griffo bested Dixon he wouldn't have got a dollar of the purse. Griffo was broke—he always is, for that matter—and it was easy to do business with him."

"Certainly they had an understanding," said Murphy. "It was a pretty fine job all through. Dixon is showing in Philadelphia. Griffo is in New York. He jumps the train and runs over to the Quaker City. Then he gets up in the box and makes some crack about Dixon. After the show O'Rourke meets Griffo and they have a barroom brawl. Then the challenge is issued and the match is made. The whole thing smells bad."

Then the challenge is issued and the match is made. The whole thing smells bad."

Bob Fitzsimmons and his sparring partner Billy McCarthy separated at Milwankee last week, Fitz's explanation of the trouble is as follows:

"You see, this fellow McCarthy had been idle for two weeks in Chicago, where they would not let us box, and had taken on about fifteen pounds through his laxiness. The first night we came together here he was as frisky as a kitten, and I did not know what to make of him. I was still more surprised a few seconds later to get a swat on the side of the head that made my teeth rattle, for he is as powerful as a young bull. I asked him what he was trying to do, in a sort of stage whisper, and a moment later got another hot one. I had not tried to hit him up to that time, but his evident intention of making a sucker of me drove me mad. He kept rushing me into the scenery, and by way of reproval I clipped him a hook in the back and then touched him hard on the nose. He seemed surprised, but did not let up with his rough work until, in self-protection, I was obliged to daze him. Then, he quit and refused to finish out his engagement. I suppose he will give if out that fried to punch him out, but I am giving you the truth of it."

Tom O'Rourke is bound to lay Griffo low if he can. He realizes that Dixon cannot accomplish this, and now he is sending his colored welterweight, Walcott, against the fighting phenomenon from Australia. The pair are to meet in a four-round bout at the Winter Circus, Philadelphia, next Saturday evening, and they should put up a great mill. Walcott agrees to best Griffo in the four rounds, and if he does he will get all the money.

Difference of $400 Between the Prices of Manager and Pitcher. It is barely possible that Breitenstein may not play with the Browns this year and unless a difference of $400 between him and Von der Ahe is settled Breit may go elsewhere. Buckenburger offered Breit $1,800 shortly before he went East, and Breit declined the offer. 'The latter held out for $2,200, and told Buck that he would not play for a less sum. In conversation Breit is quoted as saying:

"I think I should receive $2,200 inasmuch as Meekin of the New Yorks, who is no better than I, is demanding $3,500. I am a married man now and have a wife to support, and cannot get along with less than $2,200. You der Ahe bluffed me last year, but I mean to hold out this time, and told Buckenberger $2,200 was my limit."

Manager Schmels has secured a new battery for the Senators. He started in last season with twenty-seven men under contract, and with these two new ones he alread has twenty-one men on his list, without counting Faul Radford and Frank Ward. The pitcher is Harry Krumm of Columbus, O., of whom Mr. Schmels says: "He is a big 6-footer, weighs 190 pounds, and has the speed of a whiriwind. He has pitched for teams about Columbus for several years with great success, but would never go out professionally, as his folks are wealthy. Al Selbach finally talked the professional fever into him, and now he is a Senator. I think he is good enough to make his mark in the business."

The new catcher is D. J. Mahoney, who caught last year for the Portland team of the New England League. He is a big fellow, young and vigorous, full of ambition and a hard hitter.

Pitcher William B. Mercer is out with Pitcher William B. Mercer is out with another bluft. He writes that rather than play with the Senators next season at an increase of $600 in his salary he will stay at his home in East Liverpool, O., and play with a semi-professional team. He is rather young at the business and thinks such talk will frighten experienced bease ball men like J. Earl. Wagner and Gus Schmeis into the wildest kind of tantrums. He is fooling nobody but himself. The 2d day of March will find him picking his teeth in front of the Randall along with the balance of the Senatorial aggregation.

Small Prospect of a Telegraph Match Between St. Louis and Cincinnati.

There seems to be little chance of the telegraph rifle match between the Central Sharpshooters' Association of this city and the Cincinnati Rifle Association owing to the wide difference in the conditions imposed by each association. The following are the letters on the subject which passed between the captain of the Centrals and the secretary of the Cincinnatis:

"Cincinnati Rifle Association—Grillemen: Your letter to Captain William Schaaf, dated Dec. 28, 1894, in which you say: 'We would accept your challenge if it were 200 yards off-hand, three-pound trigger pull or more, any targets you desire, any make of rifle, any caliber, ten or more men, 10, 20, 50 or more shots, any sights you desire, no hip rest, purely off-hand, has been submitted to the Central Sharpshooters' Association of this city, of which Captain Schaaf is also a member. The reason for his soudoing is that the Missouri Rifle and Pistol Club has no winter range at 200 yards, and could not accept your proposition to shoot at that distance. Your proposition has been submitted to the Central Sharpshooters' Association.

"The Central Sharpshooters' Association is willing to shoot a match of ten or more men at 200 yards, ten, twenty or more shots, any target (German ring target preferable) any make of rifle of less than 40 caliber; members of each team to use such triggers as they see fit, and barring telescope sights and palm rest. I suppose it wil not be necessary for me to say that, the members of our association are used to the rules of the Western Schuetzen Bund, allowing palm rest, but we will concede that, as it is the desire of the members to do away with that cumbarsome contrivance. I am satisfied that if we could arrange as match between our respective associations it would greatly advance the interest in rifle shooting. Please let me hear from you as soon as convenient. If you desire to make the match more interesting, we could arrange so that the score of the individ

In reply to the above Mr. Drube, Secretary of the Cincinnati Rifle Association, answered the Secretary of the Bt. Louis club: As to not having a winter range we can not boast of any. We shoot every fourteen winter. We must brave not boast of any. We shoot every fourteen days, summer and winter. We must brave the weather the same as any one that shoots in winter. Mr. Gindele, our captain, who leads, as a rule, all the shoots of the Cincinnati Rifie Association, says he met Mr. S. G. Derman at Omsha, and he claims he too uses the palm rest. As we have little opportunity to get the German ring target we would prefer, as it has been adopted the States over, the Standard American or Hinman—preferable for off-hand shooting. Captain Gindele advises me to state that the association stands ready to accept a challenge from the St. Louis Sharpshooters' Association eten men' to a side. Conditions: Standard American or Hinman target, 200 yards off-hand. Appended is the Cincinnati team, subject to change by the captain: Hake, Drube, Wellinger, Payne, Weinheimer, Lee, Hosensahl, Simon, Stegner and Captain M. Gindele. Most respectfully.

The Grannan-McClelland-Wallace-Perkins combination will be a hard one to beat this season. "Soup" Perkins is under contract to ride for McClelland in 1895.

Charlie Shauer, one of the most prominent jockeys in the saddle several years ago, died in a hospital in Brooklyn on last Sunday. Shauer came from Cincinnati, and was 39 years of age at his death. In the early eighties, Shauer ranked up with the top notchers, riding for the Belmonts, the Lordilards and other well-known owners. But for an accident, Shauer might have become a rival of Jimmie McLaughlin, "Snapper" Garrison, Billy Hayward, Isaac Murphy and the other stars of that time. Shauer was bitten in the right hand by a vicious dog. The bite necessitated the amputation of three of his fingers. This interfered with his riding, and he lost his winning form. He managed to win a mount now and then, however, and rode until the last year or so at all of the prominent Eastern tracks.

ENGLISH MANUFACTURER WHO GVES SUBSTANTIAL REASONS.

Mr. J. W. Holmes, for Twenty-five Years a Lancashire Manufacturer, Double the Price for Raw Material.

Whether the present scheme to establish a cotton factory in St. Louis proves successful or not, I predict that within the next twenty-five years there will be a dozen mills in this vicinity, all doing a large and

So spoke Mr. J. W. Holmes of Jennis Station to a Post-Dispatch reporter. Mr. Holmes has had an experience twenty-five years in the cotton factories of England and, while not wishing to be placed in the light of a prophet, claims to be thor-oughly versed in the art of manufacturing

"As to climatic conditions, cotton is not manufactured in open air, as it is grown, but inside and always, even in England, in an artificial atmosphere. It is too late in the day to ask, is the climate suitable? as already in extreme conditions of climate cotton is being manufactured—for instance, India, Russia, European countries, and cast and south of St. Louis in this country. Everything depends upon the class of goods to be produced.

"Again, some may ask, Does not the higher rate of wages paid in this country handloap the manufacturer's profit? To this I would say it is more than neutralized by other advantages. Certain cotton cloths could be produced in St. Louis as cheaply as they can be made in Lancashire, England, and landed in New York, even provided there was no duty. But considering this, it would place St. Louis in the position of meeting her foreign rivals at our own gates to advantage.

"What are your reasons for this?"

"I was connected with the cotton trade of Lancashire for twenty-five years and frequently made goods which were shipped to St. Louis. Last summer and fail I saw goods being sold on Broadway in this city which Lagramined and knew the exact cost of in England at the factories. At present prices spot cotton in England is just about double the price it is in St. Louis. In other words, I see no reason why St. Louis should not be able to put on the New York or Eastern markets the manufactured article for the same price that English manufacturers pay for the raw material.

"It is the location of St. Louis which gives her natural advantages not surpassed by any city in the world as a cotton manufacturing center. That she is bound to attain this distinction in time I have not the slightest doubt."

The strike is our last and strongest weapon and we will never give it up. We will insist on the employment of union men at union wages. The council now has delegates from each of the building trades, including the bricklayers and plasterers, who were not amiliated with us until recently. I estimate the number of union men in the building trades at 15,000. The walking delegates will be subject to the council instead of the unions, and their individual power will not be as great as formerly."

POLICE REPORT.

The Present Force Said to Be Entirely

Too Small.

In its report for the past eighteen months filed by the Board of Police Commissioners with Gov. Stone, the total number of men on the force is given as 789, only one-half as many as any of the large cities, and only one-fourth as many as Chicago. The cost of conducting the department during the eighteen months has been $82,905. An addition of fifty men to the department during the railroad strike, it is believed, saved the city many foliars, as it prevented the necessity of calling out the milita. It is recommended that the force be large enough to provide for three eight-hour watches and still leave a reserve. The report also states there are more than 4,000 fallen women in St. Louis and the board is at a loss how to deal with them.

THE COOK REWARDS.

from a man claiming to have been instru-mental in the capture of Bill Cook, asking the exact amount of the reward and when it would be paid. Many persons seem to think that the price set upon Cook's head amounts to several thousand dollars. According to Supt. Simpson, such is not the case, the supt. Simpson, such is not the case, the total reward being not more than $1.20.

"The capture of Cook," said Supt. Simpson, "thins that gang out pretty well. Cherokee Bill and Jim Frenck are the only two members who are at large. The other members of the original gang have been disposed of as follows: Skeeter, twenty years in the penitentiary; Dason, ten years; Lucas fifteen; Farris and Snyder, each twenty years; Muson and Gordon, both killed while resisting arrest."
